

Our Work, in Brief

Intro music

20 seconds: Student Focus Group, Bristol University:

"I've always had this impression of very quiet, secretive people who don't like to talk much about themselves, but then when you actually read what people say about their work you get a completely different view."

30 seconds: Language Student, Leeds University

"Seems to be the only company that is offering something different, that I can apply my languages to, so I'm really, really grateful for that."

38 seconds: Engineering and Management Student, Exeter University

"It's real stuff that applies to the here and now, especially with the world the way it is."

42 seconds: Gareth, GCHQ

"Particularly with the world now that we're facing, increased threat of terrorism, vast amount of communications being sent through the internet, across the whole organisation, right the way through to the way we manage and look after people, everybody in the organisation is tasked now with saying, in an internet age, how do we need to operate."

58 seconds: Helen, GCHQ

"We want people to make impact, but walking through the portals of GCHQ I think in itself has tremendous impact."

1m 05 seconds: Nikki, GCHQ

"GCHQ has changed so much in the years that I've been here, there are fresh challenges, technology moves ahead and GCHQ needs to move with it, it needs to face up to those challenges, and I work - actually I'm quite proud to say - that I work with some of the most intelligent people in the country, tackling some of the most difficult technical problems that are out there."

1m 25 seconds: Neil, GCHQ

"Although I'm not working at the front line, producing intelligence, what I do in terms of the support that I offer can really make an impact longer term on how that is delivered."

1m 35 seconds: Gareth, GCHQ

"You're going to be faced with some enormously important work. Don't forget why GCHQ exists."

1m 50 seconds: Voiceover (newsreader):

Reports that within the last ten minutes an aeroplane belonging to Baltic States has crashed..."
