

Video title:

Industry partner: Vicky

Transcript:

Hi, I'm Vicky, the Head of Future Talent at BAE Applied Intelligence.

Title card: What do bursary students do on placement in your organisation?

I think it's fair to say there's no such thing as a standard day in our industry. You could be coming in to do lots of different roles, so you could be into an operational role, so it could be engineering, coding, or analysis. Or you could be going into the consultancy side and looking at client meetings and doing analysis and report writing. It really varies, so there's lots of exciting things you could be doing day-to-day.

Title card: What are your top three practical application tips?

It's really important to prepare. You only get one shot, so really think about your answers and the company that you're applying for, and make sure that you're prepared. I think as well to be really authentic and to be really genuine about who you are and what you can bring is really important. And then finally, it's about showcasing any talent or achievements you're particularly proud of and telling us about it.

Privacy statement:

Please note that the views and information expressed were prepared in a personal capacity. As such, they are reflective of the individual and may not be representative of any official policies, positions or opinions held by BAE Systems Applied Intelligence or GCHQ/NCSC.

CyberFirst, NCSC and GCHQ logos.